Thanks for your email response below.

I am satisfied with the assessments done by EPA officers in relation to your pollution reports. The attached document broadly outlines work completed by LLWF and which EPA has considered in assessment of the LLWF noise although it is beyond my ability to verify each point line by line as some are statements from documents which may have been reviewed by an auditor.

Some of EPA's assessment against the regulations relies on provision of verified documents, not EPA re-assessment of the detail of those documents beyond the auditor review.

We re-iterate that if you are not satisfied with the outcome of the EPA assessment in relation to wind farm noise and your residence, you can escalate this to the Victorian Ombudsman. Details on how to facilitate a complaint through this service can be found here:

You may also wish to read about third party civil remedies here Your third-party civil remedies | Environment Protection Authority Victoria (epa.vic.gov.au) and seek your own independent legal advice about whether and how this may apply to you. EPA is unable to provide any specific direction as to the applicability of this or whether you would meet the interest tests, but a legal practitioner could discuss this with you.

Thank you again for your email response.
